

THE HISTORY OF THE LIBRARY IN WESTERN CIVILIZATION

From Minos to Cleopatra

Konstantinos Sp. Staikos

2004

CONTENTS

Preface	IX-XVII
Table of Contents	XIX-XXIII
I. THE MINOAN AND MYCENAEAN CIVILIZATIONS
Scripts and archives in the Bronze Age	3-59
Historical background	5-7
Scripts in use in the Bronze Age	7-8
Minoan scripts	8-10
The pictographic (hieroglyphic) script	10-11
Linear A	12-16
Linear B	16-20
Deciphering Linear B	20-27
The Phaistos Disc	27-34
Conclusions	34-35
The Cypro-Minoan script and the Cypriot syllabary	35-36
Scribes and their tablets	36-38
The stylus	39
Preparing the writing tablet	39-40
The writing surface	40
Did books exist in the Minoan-Mycenaean era?	40-42
Filing systems	42-44
Sealings	44-46
Notes	51-59
II. FROM HOMER TO THE END OF THE CLASSICAL PERIOD
Public, Academic and Private Libraries     in the Greek World	63-153
The Homeric question	63-67

The 'legend' of the first edition of Homer	67-69
An edition of Homer under Pisistratus(?)	69-74
The first public libraries	74-77
Did the rhapsodists have their own private libraries or guild libraries?	77-79
The first written collections of philosophical works	79-80
From the oral to the written tradition	80-83
The role of the book is accepted	83-85
How the sophists helped to popularize books	85-89
Aristophanes and his mockery of intellectuals	89-92
Bookshops	92-93
The first private library(?)	93
Plato's travels in search of books	93-97
Rhetoric and books	97-101
Intellectual property	104-105
The book trade in the Hellenic world	101-104
Intellectual property	104-105
The philosophy schools as centres of book learning in Athens	105-110
Plato	105-106
Aristotle	108
Epicurus	108-109
Zeno	109-110
Aristotle's working methods	112
Historical references to Aristotle's library	112
The formation of Aristotle's library	112-115
The Lyceum library	115-119
Theophrastus and the Lyceum after Aristotle	119-120
Neleus	120-121
The eventful subsequent history of Aristotle's library	121-123
Apellicon	123-125
Tyrannio	125-126

Andronicus of Rhodes	126
The publishing project	126-128
Postscript	128-129
Notes	133-153
III. HELLENISTIC PERIOD
The Universal Library of the Ptolemies in Alexandria	157-245
The historical background	157-164
Ptolemy I Soter, founder of the Library	164
The sources	165
The Museum	165-166
The members of the Museum	167-168
Towards a Universal Library	168
Demetrius of Phalerum	168-169
The 'Letter of Aristeas'	169-173
The Prolegomena to Aristophanes	173
The Plautine Scholium	174
The library of the Serapeum	174-177
The Directors of the Library	177-183
Zenodotus	178-179
Apollonius Rhodius	179
Eratosthenes	180
Aristophanes of Byzantium	180-182
Apollonius Eidographus	182-183
Aristarchus	183
The first crisis in the world of literary studies	183-184
Callimachus	184-185
Creating a library classification system	185-186
The Pinakes	186
The editing and copying centre	186-188

The growth of the Library	188
The classification system in use in the Library	188-194
How much ancient Greek literature has survived?	194-196
The Ptolemies scour the world for books	196-198
From the first crisis in literary studies to the time of Cleopatra	198-200
Was Caesar responsible for the burning of the Library?	200-204
Egypt as a Roman province	204-206
The linguistic tradition	206
Incidental information about scholars of the Museum	207
The strife caused by Christianity	208
From Zenobia to Diocletian	208-210
The Byzantine period	210-212
From the roll to the codex	212-213
The destruction of the Library: the Arab version	214
Caliph Omar and the burning of the books	214-220
Epilogue	220-221
Notes	225-245
IV. HELLENISTIC PERIOD
Other Libraries from Pergamum to Ai Khanoum	249-267
The kingdom of Pergamum	249-250
The foundation of the Library	250-252
The Library at its zenith	252-254
Organization and textual studies	254-255
The problem of pseudepigraphy	256
Expansion of the Library	256
Ai Khanoum	256-257
Other libraries in the Hellenistic period	257-258
Gymnasium libraries	259
The Gymnasium of Ptolemy	259-260

Gymnasium in Piraeus(?)	260
Gymnasia on Rhodes and Cos	260
Notes	265-267

V. ARCHITECTURE

Typology and equipment of archival and academic libraries	271-300
--	---------

Archival libraries in the Minoan and Mycenaean civilizations	271
--	-----

Developing a filing system	272
----------------------------	-----

From Homer to Aristotle	273
-------------------------	-----

Private libraries	274-277
-------------------	---------

Public libraries	277-278
------------------	---------

Academic libraries	278-279
--------------------	---------

The Lyceum	279-282
------------	---------

Hellenistic period	282-283
--------------------	---------

The Pergamum Library	283-288
----------------------	---------

Gymnasia	288-290
----------	---------

Rhodes	290-291
--------	---------

Nysa	291-293
------	---------

Notes	297-300
-------	---------

ABBREVIATIONS AND BIBLIOGRAPHY	303-327
--------------------------------	---------

INDEX	331-349
-------	---------